ANTONIO VERTUCCIO holds a PhD in Internationalization of Legal Systems and Fundamental Rights at the University of Campania Luigi Vanvitelli (2026), where he is also honorary fellow in International Law, Advanced International Law, Private International Law, the European Convention on Human Rights, and International Protection of Human Rights and collaborates in the scientific and teaching activities of the chairs of International Law, International Protection of Human Rights, and International Sports Law at the Department of Law of the University (2022 - 2026). Currently he is also honorary fellow in International Law at the Department of Legal Sciences of the University of

Salerno. (2026). He successfully completed the judicial traineeship under Article 73 of Legislative Decree 69/2013 at the Public Prosecutor's Office of Santa Maria Capua Vetere (2022 – 2024) and has qualified as an attorney at law (2024). His research focuses on the protection of human rights, with a particular focus on digital evolution and the related emerging critical issues for the protection of personal data. His scientific approach aims to highlight existing gaps in the protection of individuals' personal sphere, promoting the dignity and integrity of the person in the technological context. His research methodology is characterized by an interdisciplinary perspective, which lends scientific inquiry a systemic scope. His internationally oriented research path moves within the aforementioned transversal dimension through an in-depth knowledge of criminal law and European Union dynamics. In this regard, he has transposed the aforementioned research drivers into numerous scientific articles, all united by the aim of contributing minimally to raising standards of protection of individuals' human rights, especially regarding the protection of personal data. The rigor of his scientific analyses is corroborated by the continuous exchange with human rights experts and actors in the technology sector, as demonstrated by his participation in research projects such as PeACE, Privacy – Preserving Architecture for Cloud – edge, developed at the University of Campania Luigi Vanvitelli (2023-2024). His doctrinal theses have found authoritative validation and dissemination at the University
